“As a first-time CASE conference attendee, I loved the newcomers’ sessions. It was excellent to get to know the culture of the conference before it started. I know I am in the right field when everyone is willing to collaborate, share and advise at an event like the CASE V conference.”

Attend the 35th annual CASE V Conference Dec. 13-15, 2009, at the Chicago Sheraton Hotel and Towers.

This is the professional development conference to attend.

We’re proud of this year’s quality programming — at a great conference price (and an awesome hotel rate). We know you’re struggling with office budgets, so we’ve held costs down ... while offering the top programming you’ve come to expect from CASE V.

Improve your well-being too.

World-renowned explorer and National Geographic writer Dan Buettner will give secrets to longevity. In our don’t miss opening session, Buettner shares how to get more life from your years and more years from your life — all with a simple formula on how to add up to eight good years to your life.

“I think the networking opportunities with folks from other institutions was the most valuable part of the conference for me.” — Past CASE V Conference Participant
